Item 2.05. Costs Associated With Exit or Disposal Activities

On November 30, 2004, Sabre Holdings Corporation (the Company) entered into a Master End User Agreement for Sun Products and Services (the Agreement) with Sun Microsystems, Inc. (Sun Microsystems) to assist with the consolidation of the Company's existing midrange environment and to provide the Company with Enterprise System software and ongoing consulting services. The Agreement allows the Company to consolidate approximately 900 of its existing midrange platform servers onto a standardized midrange environment consisting of approximately 400 servers, resulting in significant savings to the Company from the optimization of the Company's hardware capacity and leveraging of newer, more efficient technology infrastructure by the Company.

The term of the migration onto the consolidated hardware environment will consist of a five-month planning period, followed by a ten-month scheduled migration. As part of the migration, the Company will sell its existing infrastructure assets to Sun Microsystems for approximately $2.3 million. These assets will be leased back over the term of the 15-month planning and migration periods described above. These assets have an original cost of approximately $25.0 million, accumulated depreciation of approximately $15.4 million, and a net book value of approximately $9.6 million. The Company estimates that it will receive approximately $2.3 million in proceeds from this sale, resulting in an approximate $7.3 million book loss as a result of this transaction. The Company does not expect the loss resulting from this transaction to have any impact on the Company's future cash expenditures. Additionally, the Company expects significant annual cost savings from the Agreement beginning in 2005.
