VODAFONE FOUNDATION TO DEPLOY MOBILE NETWORK IN SOUTH SUDAN REFUGEE CAMP

The Vodafone Foundation has today announced that it will deploy its portable mobile phone network in the largest refugee camp in South Sudan, allowing aid workers to undertake life-saving work, enabling 70,000 refugees to contact relatives for free and giving children access to life-changing education programmes.

The announcement coincides with the United Nations (UN) World Refugee Day on 20 June, 2013, a day dedicated to raising awareness of the plight of refugees, with millions of people around the world forced to flee their homes due to war, conflict and persecution. The deployment will be carried out in partnership with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

A team from the Vodafone Foundation will travel from Kenya to set up the Instant Network - a mobile phone network which fits in to three suitcases, weighs less than 100kg and can be transported on commercial flights - in the Yida camp in Unity State. Yida camp is an overcrowded temporary settlement and lacks even the most basic infrastructure.

In 2012, the Vodafone Foundation Instant Network was deployed to provide communications during severe droughts in Kaikor, Northern Kenya and in Davao Oriental in the Philippines following Typhoon Bopha. In both cases, the equipment was set up within 40 minutes.

The Vodafone Foundation Instant Network deployment in South Sudan will operate in partnership with Vodafone Group's mobile network partner Zain Group www.zain.com and will include the distribution of handsets and the provision of free airtime to aid workers across the 3,000-acre refugee camp for a period of six months.

The Vodafone Foundation Instant Network mission to South Sudan will also include an assessment of a larger permanent refugee camp one hour's drive from Yida to look at the potential for deploying the equipment to support a range of education programmes. The Vodafone Foundation is exploring options to establish an education centre for child refugees in this location, using tablets and smartphones to provide schooling to children with no access to conventional educational facilities. The programme could begin as early as July 2013 and would be part of a wider plan to provide education for children living in refugee camps. In April 2013, the Vodafone Foundation signed a memorandum of understanding (MOU) with Educate A Child, a global programme launched by Her Highness Sheikha Moza bint Nasser of Qatar in November 2012, to bring quality primary education to millions of out of school children.

Separately, Vodafone Group's subsidiary in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), Vodacom Congo, has today announced a commitment to support 17,000 refugees at the Mugunga Camp in North Kivu Province, Goma. Vodacom Congo has launched a text message donation service called Alerte Rouge in which funds will be raised to meet basic emergency needs such as the purchase of food, tents, blankets and mosquito nets. A team from the Vodafone Foundation is currently in the DRC exploring deploying the Instant Network in the Mugunga camp in the near-term and will assess the potential for setting up education programmes based on mobile devices.

Vodafone Group Sustainability Director and Director of the Vodafone Foundation Andrew Dunnett, said: "Providing mobile technology in refugee camps will enable aid agencies to operate more effectively and will allow vulnerable people to contact their loved ones. It is also our intention to use Vodafone's technology to provide many thousands of children living in refugee camps far from home with access to educational programmes which cannot be delivered through any other means."

2013 Annual Report

2013 Notice of Annual General Meeting

In accordance with Listing Rule 9.6.1, Vodafone has uploaded a copy of each of the above documents to the National Storage Mechanism.

The 2013 Annual Report is available at vodafone.com/ar2013 and the 2013 Notice of Annual General Meeting is available at vodafone.com/agm.

A condensed set of Vodafone's financial statements and information on important events that have occurred during the financial year ended 31 March 2013 and their impact on the financial statements were included in Vodafone's preliminary results announcement released on 21 May 2013. That information, together with the information set out below, which is extracted from the 2013 Annual Report, constitute the material required by Disclosure and Transparency Rule 6.3.5 which is required to be communicated to the media in full unedited text through a Regulatory Information Service. This announcement is not a substitute for reading the full 2013 Annual Report. Page and note references in the text below refer to page numbers in the 2013 Annual Report and notes to the financial statements.

PRINCIPAL RISK FACTORS AND UNCERTAINTIES

1. Our business could be adversely affected by a failure or significant interruption to our telecommunications networks or IT systems.

Edgar Filing: VODAFONE GROUP PUBLIC LTD CO - Form 6-K

We are dependent on the continued operation of telecommunications networks. As the importance of mobile and fixed communication in everyday life increases, as well as during times of crisis, organisations and individuals look to us to maintain service. Major failures in the network or our IT systems may result in service being interrupted resulting in serious damage to our reputation and consequential customer and revenue loss.

There is a risk that an attack on our infrastructure by a malicious individual or group could be successful and impact the availability of critical systems. Our network is also susceptible to interruption due to a physical attack and theft of our network components as the value and market for network components increases (for example copper, batteries, generators and fuel).

2. We could suffer loss of consumer confidence and/or legal action due to a failure to protect our customer information.

Mobile networks carry and store large volumes of confidential personal and business voice traffic and data. We host increasing quantities and types of customer data in both enterprise and consumer segments. We need to ensure our service environments are sufficiently secure to protect us from loss or corruption of customer information. Failure to protect adequately customer information could have a material adverse effect on our reputation and may lead to legal action against the Group.

3. Increased competition may reduce our market share and profitability.

We face intensifying competition where all operators are looking to secure a share of the potential customer base. Competition could lead to a reduction in the rate at which we add new customers, a decrease in the size of our market share and a decline in our average revenue per customer, if customers choose to receive telecommunications services or other competing services from alternate providers. Competition can also lead to an increase in customer acquisition and retention costs. The focus of competition in many of our markets has shifted from acquiring new customers to retaining existing customers, as the market for mobile telecommunications has become increasingly mature.

4. Regulatory decisions and changes in the regulatory environment could adversely affect our business.

We have ventures in both emerging and mature markets, spanning a broad geographical area including Europe, Africa, Middle East, Asia Pacific and the US. We need to comply with an extensive range of requirements that regulate and supervise the licensing, construction and operation of our telecommunications networks and services. Pressure on political and regulatory institutions both to deliver direct consumer benefit and protect consumers interests, particularly in recessionary periods, can lead to adverse impacts on our business. Financial pressures on smaller competitors can drive them to call for regulators to protect them. Increased financial pressures on governments may lead them to target foreign investors for further taxes or licence fees.

5. Our existing service offerings could become disadvantaged as compared to those offered by converged competitors or other technology providers.

In a number of markets we face competition from providers who have the ability to sell converged services (combinations of fixed line, broadband, public Wi-Fi, TV and mobile) on their existing infrastructure which we cannot either replicate or provide at a similar price point. Additionally, the combination of services may allow competitors to subsidise the mobile component of their offering. This could lead to an erosion of our customer base and reduce the demand for our core services and impact our future profitability.

Advances in smartphone technology places more focus on applications, operating systems, and devices rather than the underlying services provided by mobile operators. The development of applications which make use of the internet as a substitute for some of our more traditional services, such as messaging and voice, could erode revenue. Reduced demand for our core services of voice, messaging and data and the development of services by application developers, operating system providers, and handset suppliers could significantly impact our future profitability.

6. Severely deteriorating economic conditions could impact one or more of our markets.

Economic conditions in many of the markets where we operate, especially in Europe, continue to deteriorate or stagnate. These conditions, combined with the impact of austerity measures, result in lower levels of disposable income and may result in significantly lower revenue as customers give up their mobile devices or move to cheaper tariffs.

There is also a possibility of one or more countries exiting the eurozone, causing currency devaluation in certain countries and possibly leading to a reduction in our revenue and impairment of our financial and non-financial assets. This may also lead to further adverse economic impacts elsewhere.

7. Our business may be impacted by actual or perceived health risks associated with the transmission of radio waves from mobile telephones, transmitters and associated equipment.

Concerns have been expressed that the electromagnetic signals emitted by mobile telephone handsets and base stations may pose health risks. We are not aware that such health risks have been substantiated, however, in the event of a major scientific finding supporting this view this might result in prohibitive legislation being introduced by governments (or the European Union), a major reduction in mobile phone usage (especially by children), a requirement to move base station sites, significant difficulty renewing or acquiring site leases, and/or major litigation. An inadequate response to electromagnetic fields (EMF) issues may result in loss of confidence in the industry and Vodafone.

8. Failure to deliver enterprise service offerings may adversely affect our business.

By expanding our enterprise service offerings through the growth of Vodafone Global Enterprise, the acquisitions of CWW and TelstraClear, and the establishment of cloud, hosting and international carrier services, the Group increasingly provides fixed and mobile communication services to organisations that may provide vital national services. These organisations rely on our networks and systems 24 hours a day, 365 days a year to deliver their products and services to their customers. A failure to build and maintain our infrastructure to the required levels of resilience for enterprise customers and to deliver to our contracted service level agreements may result in a costly business impact and cause serious damage to our reputation.

9. We depend on a number of key suppliers to operate our business.

We depend on a limited number of suppliers for strategically important network and IT infrastructure and associated support services to operate and upgrade our networks and provide key services to our customers. Our operations could be adversely impacted by the failure of a key supplier who could no longer support our existing infrastructure, by a key supplier commercially exploiting their position in a product area following the corporate failures of/the withdrawal from a specific market by competitors, or by major suppliers significantly increasing prices on long-term programmes where the cost or technical feasibility of switching supplier becomes a significant barrier.

10. We may not satisfactorily resolve major tax disputes.

We operate in many jurisdictions around the world and from time to time have disputes on the amount of tax due. In particular, in spite of the positive India Supreme Court decision relating to an ongoing tax case in India, the Indian government has introduced retrospective tax legislation which would in effect overturn the court's decision and has raised challenges around the pricing of capital transactions. Such or similar types of action in other jurisdictions, including changes in local or international tax rules or new challenges by tax authorities, may expose us to significant additional tax liabilities which would affect the results of the business.

11. Changes in assumptions underlying the carrying value of certain Group assets could result in impairment.

Due to the substantial carrying value of goodwill under International Financial Reporting Standards, revisions to the assumptions used in assessing its recoverability, including discount rates, estimated future cash flows or anticipated changes in operations, could lead to the impairment of certain Group assets. While impairment does not impact reported cash flows, it does result in a non-cash charge in the consolidated income statement and thus no assurance can be given that any future impairments would not affect our reported distributable reserves and, therefore, our ability to make dividend distributions to our shareholders or repurchase our shares.
