Item 1.02. Termination of a Material Definitive Agreement.

On June 13, 2014, Scientific Games Corporation (the Company) entered into a license agreement (the License Agreement) with International Game Technology (IGT), pursuant to which, on the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the agreement, IGT granted to the Company and its subsidiaries a license to use certain ticket-in-ticket-out (TITO) cashless gaming technology patented by IGT and others. Prior to its acquisition by the Company, Bally Technologies, Inc. (Bally) had also entered into a license agreement (the Bally License Agreement) with IGT pursuant to which IGT granted to Bally and its affiliates a license to use the same TITO cashless gaming technology.

As a result of the Company s acquisition of Bally on November 21, 2014, the Company believes that it and its subsidiaries are entitled to utilize the licenses provided under the Bally License Agreement. IGT has previously communicated to the Company that it disagrees with the Company s position and that it believes that the Company is in breach of the License Agreement due to its use of license tags belonging to Bally instead of license tags issued pursuant to the License Agreement.

On December 19, 2014, the Company filed a complaint against IGT in the District Court of Clark County, Nevada seeking to enforce the terms of the Bally License Agreement. On April 21, 2015, the Company received notification from IGT purporting to terminate the License Agreement as a result of the Company s alleged breach of the License Agreement.

The Company believes IGT s claims are without merit and disputes that the License Agreement has been validly terminated. The Company intends to enforce its rights under the License Agreement and the Bally License Agreement and will pursue such other remedies as it determines are appropriate.
