Sony Corporation (“Sony”) today announced that it has decided to have VJ Corporation, which will be renamed as VAIO Corporation after this company split, succeed to certain rights and obligations related to a part of Sony’s PC business currently operated in Japan under the VAIO brand by an “absorption-type company split”, as set forth below. This company split is a step in the process of a sale of Sony’s PC business announced in the press release dated May 2, 2014 “Sony and Japan Industrial Partners’ Special Purpose Company Sign Definitive Agreements for the Sale of PC business”.

Certain information is omitted from this announcement since this is an absorption-type company split conducted under the Companies Act of Japan by which the reduction of Sony’s total assets by this company split are expected to be less than 10% of its total assets as of the end of the previous fiscal year and the reduction of Sony’s sales and operating revenue by this company split are expected to be less than 3% of its sales and operating revenue in the previous fiscal year.
