Financial Results and Condition for the Three Months Ended June 30, 2003,
and Prospects for the Year Ending March 31, 2004

1. Overview of the Three Months Ended June 30, 2003

1) Economic Situation and Business Environment

Although the stock market rose and there were signs of a recovery in personal consumption in the United States during the first quarter, the U.S. economy did not recover, due in part to a continued slump in the production capacity utilization ratio for the manufacturing industry. Further, the European economy weakened overall, and the Asian economy was negatively impacted by Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS), which dulled consumption in the Chinese market. Together with the continued downturn in personal consumption and capital investment, these blows to the world economy combined to weaken the Japanese economy.

In the electronics industry, shipments of personal computers during the quarter increased year-on-year. However, due to lower-than-expected production of mobile handsets in China because of the impact of SARS, and to a downward trend in mobile handsets production in Europe and Korea, the global demand for mobile handset components fell short of forecasts.

2) Consolidated Financial Results

	Three Months Ended		Increase (Decrease)
	June 30,
	2003	2002	(%)
	(Yen in millions)
Net sales	253,126	253,930	(0.3)
Profit from operations	12,798	22,242	(42.5)
Income before income taxes	16,442	16,375	0.4
Net income	10,730	7,391	45.2
US$ average exchange rate (yen)	118	127
Euro average exchange rate (yen)	135	117

Although Kyocera Corporation and its consolidated subsidiaries (Kyocera) endeavored to expand sales of new products and develop new markets, weaker-than-expected demand during the first quarter, along with the impact of falling prices, resulted in a year-on-year decline in component sales such as Fine Ceramics Group and Electronic Device Group. Sales of Equipment Group were also down slightly year-on-year, despite an increase in sales of information equipment, due to the decline in mobile handset sales in the United States.

Sales of Others increased compared with the previous same period, because of the consolidation of Kyocera Chemical Corporation (Kyocera Chemical) into Kyocera in August 2002 and the contribution to the first quarter results for this fiscal year. As a whole, consolidated net sales during the first quarter were ¥253.1 billion, slightly down 0.3% from the same period of the previous year.

Edgar Filing: KYOCERA CORP - Form 6-K

Profit from operations for the first quarter of the year ending March 31, 2004 decreased, as compared with the corresponding quarter of the previous fiscal year, due principally to a ¥4.6 billion revaluation gain recorded in the first quarter of the previous fiscal year in respect of the provision relating to the lawsuit with LaPine Technology Corporation (LTC) of the United States. Income before income taxes increased slightly, however, due to a significant decrease during the first quarter of the current fiscal year, as compared with the corresponding quarter of the previous fiscal year, in the foreign exchange losses incurred by Kyocera in connection with its foreign currency deposit with the financial institution which is issuing a letter of credit necessary for Kyocera to continue the lawsuit with LTC. Such deposit has been made to reduce the service fee charged by the financial institution on the letter of credit. In addition, net income increased as a result of the absence of net losses amounting to ¥2.3 billion as a cumulative effect under Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 142, Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets.

Table of Contents

During the first quarter, agreement was reached on May 21st to make Kinseki, Limited. (Kinseki) a wholly-owned subsidiary through stock swap in order to strengthen its existing businesses, as part of Kyocera's core strategy initiative of high-value-added diversification. Kinseki is scheduled to become a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company on August 1. In addition, agreement was reached on June 30 with IBM Corporation and IBM Japan Ltd. to transfer the SLCtm (Surface Laminar Circuitrytm: laminated high-density printed circuit board) business of IBM Japan Ltd.'s Yasu Site to Kyocera. With the transfer of this business, Kyocera will establish a new company, which will begin operations as a new subsidiary in September 2003.

* SLCtm (Surface Laminar Circuitrytm) is a laminated high-density printed circuit board developed by IBM Corporation of the United States, and Surface Laminar Circuitrytm is a trademark of IBM Corporation.

Equipment Group	7,350	8,341	(11.9)
Others	1,589	527	201.5

1) Fine Ceramics Group

Although sales of semiconductor parts declined, sales of fine ceramic parts such as parts for LCD fabrication equipment and sapphire substrates for projectors achieved a steady growth year-on-year. Applied ceramic products such as solar energy systems and cutting tools resulted in significant increase of sales and profit.

2) Electronic Device Group

Kyocera recognized start-up costs associated with the launch of the micro-device business, and capacitor business including AVX Corporation, a U.S. subsidiary experienced a tough business situation in terms of sales and profit. However, both sales and profit of thin-film products and connectors grew.

3) Equipment Group

Sales and profit of telecommunications equipment were down, due to a depressed mobile handset market overseas, and optical instruments were also stagnant. For information equipment, however, sales increased year-on-year, and improvement in product mix and continued cost reductions generated a considerable increase in operating profit.

Edgar Filing: KYOCERA CORP - Form 6-K

4) Others

Kyocera Chemical newly contributed to this segment during the quarter and Kyocera Communication Systems Co., Ltd. achieved a significant growth in sales and profit.

1) Cash Flows from Operating Activities

Net cash provided by operating activities for the three months ended June 30, 2003 decreased by ¥43.3 billion to ¥6.9 billion from the previous same period of ¥50.2 billion. This was due mainly to increases in inventories and payments for income taxes and a decrease in notes and accounts payable, although net income increased by ¥3.3 billion to ¥10.7 billion compared with the previous same period.

2) Cash Flows from Investing Activities

Net cash provided by investing activities for the three months ended June 30, 2003 increased by ¥28.6 billion to ¥2.8 billion from net cash used in the previous same period of ¥25.8 billion. This was due mainly to a decrease in purchase of securities and an increase in proceeds from maturities of securities.

3) Cash Flows from Financing Activities

Net cash used in financing activities for the three months ended June 30, 2003 decreased by ¥4.9 billion to ¥9.4 billion from the previous same period of ¥14.3 billion. This was due mainly to an increase in short-term debt.

5. Prospects for the Year Ending March 31, 2004

1) Economic Situation and Business Environment

The prospects for economic conditions include a return to stability in the Asian economy as the SARS crisis settles down, continued sluggishness in the European economy, and a slow recovery in the U.S. economy. Because the Japanese economy is strongly affected by the U.S. economy, the future for Japan remains unclear.

The electronics industry expects a continued increase in demand for personal computers, as well as digital AV equipment like digital cameras and DVDs. Production of mobile handsets is expected to increase, due to growing demand for color LCDs and camera equipped models, but the direction of personal consumption remains unclear amid low expectations for a stable recovery in the global economy.

Given this business environment, Kyocera aims to improve its business performance by continuing to develop new markets and expand sales of new products, and by implementing further cost reductions. There is no revision of our initial forecast for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2004, and a detailed forecast of the previously announced is as follows.
