in Mainland China

Shanghai, China April 22, 2008. The9 Limited (NASDAQ: NCTY)(The9), a leading online game operator in China, announced today that it has, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, entered into an agreement with NDOORS Corporation (Ndoors), a leading game developer in Korea, for an exclusive license to operate Atlantica, a 3D massively multiplayer online role-playing game (MMORPG), in mainland China. The term of the license is for three years from the commercial launch date of the game in mainland China.

Atlantica is a 3D online turn-based MMORPG produced by Ndoor s renowned developer, Mr. Kim Tai Gon, who has over 15 years of game development experience and has delivered various premium quality games to the market. Atlantica commenced open-beta testing and commercialization in Korea in January of this year. Given its unique turn-based combat mode and playability, Atlantica has been well received by players and is considered as a popular strategy MMORPG product for 2008.

Mr. Jun Zhu, The9 s Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, commented: We are pleased to obtain the exclusive operating license for Atlantica, the prize product of Ndoors. Differentiating from other games we licensed in the past, Atlantica emphasizes more on game strategy while maintaining the core features of typical MMORPG. Among all the online games launched in Korea since last year, Atlantica is the most creative game with the highest level of completeness. We expect Atlantica to further expand and enhance our game pipeline.

We are very excited to introduce Atlantica to the Chinese market together with The9, the leading online game operator in China, commented Mr. Cho. Seong Won, Chief Executive Officer of Ndoors. We are particularly impressed by The9 s top-notch game operating capabilities and its operational team s enthusiasm and insightful understanding of online games. We believe The9 s operational resources and experiences, together with Ndoors continuous efforts in Atlantica s development, will ensure players from all over China fully enjoy the excitement of Atlantica.
