The following is the text of a press release issued by Deere & Company on December 6, 2005

Deere & Company to sell managed care subsidiary

MOLINE, Illinois (December 6, 2005) Deere & Company today said that it has agreed to sell its wholly-owned managed care subsidiary to UnitedHealthcare of Minneapolis, Minnesota the second largest health insurer in the United States. Deere said it has signed a definitive agreement to sell John Deere Health Care, Inc. and is projecting to close the sale by April 1, 2006.

For over 20 years, the employees of John Deere Health Care have done an outstanding job serving their customers, including John Deere employees, said Robert W. Lane, chairman and chief executive officer of Deere & Company. Now all can benefit from the advantages provided by a national health care insurer.

Deere has been in the managed health care business since creating the subsidiary in 1985. John Deere Health Care provides coverage for enrollees in Iowa, Illinois, Virginia and Tennessee.

Richard Bartsh, M.D., president of John Deere Health Care, Inc., said current customers and enrollees of the health plans now administered by Deere can expect more of the same high quality service that has distinguished the company's health care operations as a regional leader.

We are committed to providing our customers continuity of service along with delivering future enhancements that will be brought to our markets by UnitedHealthcare, Bartsh said. The sale does not impact the benefits provided for Deere employees, retirees, surviving spouses, and dependents.

UnitedHealthcare will purchase John Deere Health Care, Inc. for approximately $500 million in a stock purchase transaction. Deere said it will record a pre-tax gain of approximately $350 million and an after-tax gain of approximately $225 million when the transaction closes. The agreement is subject to certain state and federal regulatory approvals.

As part of the transaction, UnitedHealthcare has agreed to purchase the John Deere Health Care headquarters building in Moline, Illinois and has indicated that the current operations there will become a regional office for UnitedHealthcare.

Deere & Company is the world's leading manufacturer of agricultural and forestry equipment and a major manufacturer of equipment for construction and for lawn, grounds and turf care. UnitedHealth Group is a diversified health and well-being company dedicated to making health care work better and is headquartered in Minneapolis, Minnesota.
