Enclosure: Operational Challenges during the Third Quarter of 2017.

Copa Holdings S.A. (NYSE: CPA) hereby notifies that during the third quarter, the company has faced an unusually high number of operational challenges due to severe weather and natural disasters in the region, and other external factors that affected its hub in Panama City. These challenges have impacted the company's operational metrics and overall passenger experience. Based on currently available information, these events are expected to impact the company's financial performance for the third quarter of 2017.

Hurricanes Irma and Maria, the September 19th earthquake near Mexico City, an extended power outage and other operational events in Panama City's Tocumen International Airport, together have led to significant disruptions and delays, as well as the cancellation of close to 450 flights, or approximately 1.4% of the scheduled flights for the quarter.

These operational challenges and the corresponding actions taken by the company have resulted in foregone revenues and incremental expenses. The company estimates the cumulative effect will be a reduction in operating earnings of approximately US$12 million for the third quarter. The company prepared this estimate based on currently available information.

It is important to note that these are all isolated events and should not materially impact the company's fourth quarter performance and/or its ability to generate earnings in the future. These events have brought significant devastation and hardship to the people of the region. In solidarity, Copa Airlines has waived penalties and changes fees for passengers traveling within the affected destinations. The company has also operated a number of humanitarian flights delivering supplies, transporting evacuees, and mobilizing search and rescue teams to several affected destinations.
