BARCLAYS TO ACQUIRE A CONTROLLING INTEREST IN FIAT'S IVECO VEHICLE FINANCE BUSINESS

Barclays Asset and Sales Finance, the specialist asset backed lending provider of the Barclays Group, has agreed to form a new company with Iveco SpA ("Iveco") to provide commercial vehicle financing and leasing solutions to Iveco customers in Europe, initially in the UK, Italy, France, Germany and Switzerland, with a joint intention to commence business in other European countries.

Iveco will transfer certain subsidiaries of Iveco Finance to the new company and Barclays will then acquire a 51% share and controlling stake in the company for a consideration of GBP66.5m (EUR96.8m). The proposed transaction is conditional upon necessary regulatory clearances.

This transaction will expand Barclays Asset and Sales Finance's commercial vehicle expertise across Europe, by providing an opportunity to work with a European commercial vehicle manufacturer which has leading market positions in all important commercial vehicle segments in Western Europe. Barclays Asset and Sales Finance already has a strong presence in many of Iveco's principal markets and this will provide opportunities for further expansion of existing operations, as well as the development of new markets. The transaction also serves to accelerate the Barclays Group strategic aim of developing retail and commercial banking activities in selected markets outside the UK.

Iveco Finance is the prime supplier of hire purchase, finance leasing, instalment loans and contract hire solutions for Iveco commercial vehicle operations in France, Germany, Italy, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland and the UK. As at the end of 2004 it had total receivables of GBP1.51bn (EUR2.2bn). The European commercial vehicle financing market is expected to grow at over twice the rate of Eurozone GDP over the medium term.

Stephen Price, Managing Director of Barclays Asset and Sales Finance, commented, "This is a great opportunity, which combines the manufacturing strength, market presence and scale of a leading European commercial vehicle manufacturer with the scale and resources of a global financial services provider. It will accelerate the development of Barclays Asset and Sales Finance business in Europe by giving us a significant presence in a number of new markets plus the ability to work with an acknowledged industry leader in the European commercial vehicle sector".

Paolo Monferino, Chief Executive Officer of Iveco said, "This new company will allow the Iveco Finance business to become even more competitive and will assist us to provide even more innovative solutions to increasingly sophisticated customer needs. It will enable an already successful business to be developed by drawing on the balance sheet strength and asset finance expertise of Barclays".

Announcement by Barclays PLC and Barclays Bank PLC

Shareholders are advised that Absa have today made the further cautionary announcement set out below regarding discussions relating to the possible acquisition by Barclays Bank PLC of a majority stake in Absa.

Text of Absa announcement made on Monday 25 April 2005

Absa Group Limited
(Incorporated in the Republic of South Africa)

FURTHER CAUTIONARY ANNOUNCEMENT

Shareholders are referred to previous cautionary announcements released on SENS, the JSE Securities Exchange News Service, the last one appearing on 4 April 2005 regarding discussions relating to the possible acquisition of a majority stake in Absa by Barclays Bank PLC ("Barclays").

Edgar Filing: BARCLAYS PLC - Form 6-K

Subsequent to 4 April Barclays and Absa have been engaged in extensive discussions regarding the terms of a possible transaction. The parties have also had a series of meetings with large shareholders during which the possibility of a partial offer to acquire 60% of Absa shares at a price of R79.00 (plus a final dividend for the year ended 31 March 05 estimated at the time to be approximately R1.80) was discussed.

Barclays and Absa have also estimated that, should a transaction proceed, it is expected that the combination would produce significant synergies by accelerating the strategic objectives of both parties improving Absa's pre-tax profits by approximately R1.4bn per annum four years after completion (after incurring implementation costs of approximately R1.8bn over the first three years).

Barclays and Absa are considering the feedback from Absa shareholders and will now determine whether a transaction would receive the requisite support from shareholders on terms acceptable to Barclays, at which stage Barclays will revert to the regulatory authorities for final consideration.

Shareholders should note that this announcement does not constitute a firm intention to make an offer by Barclays. Shareholders are advised that should an offer be made it may or may not be at a premium to the prevailing market price. Shareholders should continue to exercise caution when dealing in Absa securities until such time as a further announcement is made.

BARCLAYS PLC ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING THURSDAY 28 APRIL 2005

CHAIRMAN'S STATEMENT BY MATTHEW W. BARRETT

This is my first time to report to you, on behalf of the Board, on our stewardship of the company during 2004. I am honoured to do so.

2004 was a record year for financial performance for Barclays. John Varley, our new CEO, will provide the operational highlights in a few minutes. The strong profit performance enabled us to increase your dividend by 17% and total shareholder return was 23% - better than the FTSE 100 index and first place ranking amongst our peer group of major international banks.

Edgar Filing: BARCLAYS PLC - Form 6-K

We never lose sight of the fact that the overwhelming majority of our shareholders are, either directly or indirectly, the millions of workers whose pension funds are invested in us. Our success, like that of all listed companies, is an important factor in the quality of life and degree of security that so-called "ordinary men and women" will enjoy in their retirement.

In addition, our profits provide corporate tax revenue to governments that helps to support vital public services - some GBP1bn will be paid as a result of last year's profits.

And, of course, successful companies create jobs and futures for our young people entering the workforce.

In a nutshell, profitable companies benefit all stakeholders - shareholders, customers, employees and the communities in which they work and live. And the more profitable, the better for all.

There is a belief, in some quarters, that the interests of those various "stakeholders" are incompatible and that business may need to choose between shareholders and the others. At Barclays, we disagree with this point of view.

We strongly believe that value is created, maximised and sustained when the interests of all stakeholders are harmonised. To ignore one is to jeopardise the future prospects of the company and destroy value.

For this reason, your Board and management give considerable attention not just to financial performance but also to customer satisfaction, employee commitment and competence and corporate social responsibility issues. Good progress was made in 2004 across all these fronts as well, and Mr Varley will highlight these also for you. As John will report, in all areas we have improved our performance. In all areas, we are committed to improve further in future years.

2004 was also an important year as it marked the transition to a new leadership team. Sir Peter Middleton retired from the Board in September and I succeeded him as Chairman. I draw your attention to my statement in the Annual Report which includes a well deserved tribute to Sir Peter's leadership and contribution to Barclays.

John Varley succeeded me as Chief Executive. The Board is delighted that we have in John and his colleagues a highly qualified, talented and committed team to take the company forward and to new heights. That the transition was handled in an orderly fashion is a tribute to their professionalism and teamwork.

There is an old adage that "to those to whom much is given, much is expected" ! The Board has high hopes and confidence that this outstanding team will achieve great things in the years ahead.

There were a number of other Board changes in 2004. Sir Brian Jenkins retired as Deputy Chairman and was succeeded in this role by Sir Nigel Rudd. Chris Lendrum retired as Vice Chairman after serving the Group with great distinction for over 35 years. Jurgen Zech will be retiring at today's meeting.

I am particularly saddened to report that Hilary Cropper, who had been a Non-Executive Director of the Bank since 1998, died on Boxing Day. Hilary was a highly effective Director and a valued colleague who had served with distinction on the Board Remuneration, Audit and Risk Committees. She is greatly missed.

I am sure you will all join me in formally recording our thanks to all these individuals for their contribution to the Group during their time as a Director.

We appointed two new Non-Executive Directors during the year : Sir Andrew

Edgar Filing: BARCLAYS PLC - Form 6-K

Likierman and Leigh Clifford. Both are seeking re-election today. Sir Andrew is with us today. Leigh Clifford, who is Chief Executive of Rio Tinto, is attending the Annual General Meeting of Rio Tinto and cannot be with us today. He sends his regrets.

We have also announced recently the appointment of John Sunderland, Chairman of Cadbury Schweppes, as a Non-Executive Director with effect from 1st June. The Board is delighted to welcome someone with such a distinguished track record to the service of Barclays. It is our intention to make additional Non-Executive Director appointments during the course of this year to further strengthen your Board.

Corporate governance continues to be a subject of intense interest to shareholders, regulators, companies and the press. Our goal is to ensure that Barclays is an exemplar in the area of corporate governance.

In recent months, we have taken a number of steps to enhance further our corporate governance practices. We have expanded the remit of the Remuneration Committee to cover strategic human resource issues. We have also expanded the remit of the Nominations committee to cover a broad range of corporate governance issues in addition to matters relating to the composition of the Board. We have conducted a thorough, formal review of performance and effectiveness of the board, board committees and individual directors.

The review concluded that the board is discharging its responsibilities in a highly effective manner. Areas for further improvement were identified.

Let me now ask John Varley, Group Chief Executive, for his review.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S STATEMENT BY JOHN VARLEY

Thank you, Chairman, for the opportunity to give a short summary of Barclays progress in 2004.

Good Morning Ladies and Gentlemen.

I want to begin by recognising and thanking the people of Barclays for what they did in 2004. We're in business to help customers achieve their goals. Our ability to do this depends entirely on the quality of our people. We have great people in Barclays, and my thanks go to all of them, throughout the world.

That Barclays delivered, in 2004, the best year in its long history is, more than anything else, a tribute to them.

As the Chairman pointed out, we ended the year ranked number one for Total Shareholder Return among our peer group, which comprises the best global and UK banks. In 2004, income increased by 12%, profit before tax by 20%, economic profit by 32% and earnings per share by 21%.

Barclays record performance in 2004 was no one-off. It was the continuation of a consistent, multi-year track record, with double digit compound annual growth over the last five years across all of the key financial measures. For example, the compound annual growth rate of dividends since 1999 has been 14%. Last year we increased the dividend by 17%. About half of our 2004 earnings were paid to our shareholders in dividends.

This performance has been built on a clear and simple understanding of what Barclays exists to do: we move, lend, invest and protect money for customers and clients of all kinds. By doing this, we achieve our overall business purpose - which, as I referred to a moment ago, is to help customers achieve their goals, to earn their loyalty, and to deliver thereby good returns to you, our shareholders.

In 2004, we made good progress across the Group. Each of UK Banking, Private Clients and International, Barclaycard, Barclays Capital and Barclays Global Investors had record profit years.

In assessing performance in all areas, we measure success through the eyes of customers and employees. So there are two simple, but acid, tests for us: do our customers and clients value their relationship with Barclays? Are the people of Barclays proud to work here?

We must ensure that the answer to these questions is 'yes', because they are the proxies for future growth and performance.

In some parts of our business, service to customers and clients, and our track record of innovation, is first class. But we have more to do to ensure that customer service is consistent and dependable everywhere. We see this as an opportunity to improve: to earn the loyalty of customers by being excellent in what we do for them.

I'll talk for a few minutes about how we did in each of the main business areas.

In UK Banking, we invested heavily to improve customer service in our domestic Retail business, while building on the considerable momentum in our Business Banking franchise.

UK Business Banking recorded profit growth of 19%. It's a business based on industry specialisms and strong customer relationships. We achieve consistently high scores in customer satisfaction surveys in this business, and it is the industry leader in many areas.

In UK Retail, profits were broadly flat year on year. Although there are various reasons why a like for like comparison of the headline profits, 2004 versus 2003, does not give an accurate picture of the underlying performance of the business, flat profit in a big business like this is not what we expect and we are working hard to put this right.

Notwithstanding flat profits, UK Retail recorded a number of successes during the year. We attracted hundreds of thousands of new customers -- 220,000 new current account holders; 275,000 new savings account holders; 675,000 new on-line customers; 200,000 new customers of Open Plan; and 230,000 new Additions and Platinum customers. We recruited 1,000 new front line staff. This has helped us to reduce queue times in branches substantially. We upgraded the physical environment in over 400 branches.

Our business is based on our relationships - not on the products we sell, but on the people we sell them to. Last year we eliminated individual product sales targets in UK Retail and replaced them with branch value and customer service objectives, allowing individual branch managers to make decisions based on local customer needs.

Our Global product businesses - Barclays Capital, Barclays Global Investors, Barclaycard and Private Clients - all delivered strongly in 2004.

Barclays Capital turned in a record performance, with profit growth of 25%. Barclays Capital was named Bank of the Year by the International Financing Review, and Derivatives House of the Year by Risk Magazine. This performance was achieved through a sharp focus on the client, on excellent execution and on a commitment to attracting and retaining the best people. Barclays Capital's business in 2004 ranked with the best in the industry.

Barclays Global Investors, where profits grew by 82% last year, is the world's leading institutional money manager, with some $1.3 trillion under management. BGI has won this position through great client service, great products, a formidable track record in investment performance, and a history of innovation. Its exchange traded fund business - iShares - is the fastest growing new fund complex in the history of the United States, and BGI is now the global market leader.

We are on a journey of successful diversification in Barclaycard. In the UK, by putting together our card and consumer finance businesses, we are seeking to offer the most appropriate, needs based, borrowing solutions to our customers. We have responded to concerns in the industry about transparency and responsible lending, implementing solutions like the so-called summary box, which describes in plain English all the relevant terms and conditions attaching to the use of the card, and which illustrates how customers might most economically use it.

Barclaycard is enjoying significant success in executing its new partnership strategy -- with House of Fraser and Sky as well as the joint venture with Swedbank, Sweden's largest retail bank. Meanwhile the small but strategically significant acquisition of Juniper, which we completed in December of last year, gives us a strong platform for growth in the United States.

Profits in Private Clients grew 40% in 2004. We have been looking for this. We have pushed the business hard. We have invested organically and in new acquisitions. We have improved offerings to clients, we have delivered a very strong performance in the stockbroking business following the successful integration of Charles Schwab Europe, and we took advantage of more favourable equity markets in 2004. We believe we have turned the corner in this business and have high expectations of it.

In International Retail and Commercial Banking too, we saw good profit growth, of 18%. Banco Zaragozano in Spain, which we acquired in mid 2003, is delivering significantly ahead of expectations. Our businesses in Portugal and Italy, as well as our Caribbean joint venture, all performed well last year.

Our African business again demonstrated the benefit of having leading market positions.

As you know, we're also in negotiations to acquire a majority stake in the South African bank ABSA. For me this proposed deal has a number of attractions.

First, the ABSA transaction would enable us to increase the earnings we generate from outside the United Kingdom, and create much larger participation in a high growth well run market.

Second, it would create the opportunity for synergies with our existing businesses both in South Africa and across the African continent.

Third, it would give us the opportunity, in collaboration with ABSA, to deploy the global product capabilities of Barclaycard, Barclays Global Investors and Barclays Capital.

We have been engaged in extensive discussions with ABSA regarding the terms of a possible transaction. We have also had a series of meetings with ABSA's large shareholders. In conjunction with ABSA, we are considering feedback from shareholders and will now determine whether a deal on terms acceptable to Barclays would receive the requisite support from ABSA's shareholders. We will then revert to the South African regulatory authorities for final consideration.

We like this potential deal and we hope to get it done.

However, we are very clear that we will not forsake our value criteria to do so.

There is a price beyond which we will not go.

We will update you as soon as we have anything further to report.

Finally, in 2004 we made progress in strengthening our operational capabilities and our franchise health.

We received widespread recognition for our policies in a range of areas including community involvement, financial inclusion, disability, staff pensions, outsourcing, and partnership with our trade union Amicus. In fact, today we announced a new five year partnership agreement with AMICUS.

This recognition is important: it demonstrates that we take seriously the issues that concern our customers and our colleagues (as well as politicians and regulators), and that we are responding.

It is therefore a matter of considerable pride to me that our work in the field of Corporate Responsibility was recognised in 2004 with the National Business Award for Corporate and Social Responsibility.

We also committed some GBP32m in support of the community in the UK and internationally in 2004, and over 25,000 employees and pensioners worldwide took part in Barclays - supported fundraising and volunteering activities.

So 2004 was a year of good achievement across our Group, and we made good headway in executing our strategy.

Building on that performance, Barclays has made a good start to 2005.

Let me end with a few words about the future.

Our performance during the last five years, the clear strategy that has driven our progress, and the substantial momentum we have created would not have been achieved without the leadership of Matt Barrett as Chief Executive.

But it's the task of every generation of leadership to build on the accomplishments of its predecessors and to take performance to the next level.

My colleagues and I go about that task in the clear knowledge that leaders exist to serve stakeholders - the principal role of the Executive Committee of this Group is to help those whom we lead to serve their customers and clients, thereby creating the opportunity for other stakeholders - the communities in which we live and work, and of course you, our shareholders - to benefit.

That is what you should expect from us.

I am honoured by the trust placed in me by my appointment as Chief Executive. Barclays is, and has been for a very long time, an iconic name in the world of banking. My colleagues and I feel heavily the obligation to serve to the best of our ability the shareholders, customers and employees of this great company.

As we look forward, and as we build on the significant transformation of the last five years, I want Barclays to be recognised for two things in particular:-

First of all growth - We have a distinctive, competitively advantaged and tightly knit group of businesses. It is the product of an investment approach that requires that we earn, invest and grow at the same time. This approach has enabled us to deliver the five most profitable years in our history, while making the heavy investments that are producing today's and tomorrow's growth.

Secondly, Barclays must also be recognised for its focus on Customers, Clients and Colleagues - Great service to customers and clients, delivered by high-performing employees, is the foundation of long-term, sustainable performance.

We are very focused on these critical aspects of our work.

Thank you.
