Facts About the Transaction

Entergy Corporation and ITC Holdings Corp. are pursuing regulatory approval of an agreement under which Entergy will separate and then merge its electric transmission business into ITC in 2013. Entergy's transmission business comprises approximately 15,400 miles of lines at voltages of 69kV and above, associated substations, and the people who operate and maintain them.

Why this transaction? Regulatory mandates and consumer usage patterns are vastly different and greater than when the electric grid was built. The infrastructure investments required to address these demands are expected to increase significantly over the next two decades. The situation requires new business models and more focused, expert and financially flexible utilities.

How will it work? The transaction is a Reverse Morris Trust, which avoids tax costs for customers and shareholders. The result creates two separate and independent utilities serving the region – Entergy with generation and distribution, ITC with transmission.

Who must approve it? Federal, state and local regulators must approve the transaction in order for it to proceed. ITC shareholders have approved it.

What are the benefits? The key benefits to our customers, employees and communities are strength, expertise and opportunity.

Strength: a stronger grid and stronger utilities serving our region; two balance sheets more capable of financing the infrastructure investments required in the future.

Expertise: two companies singularly focused on their core businesses.

Opportunity: a new corporate citizen establishes its regional office in Jackson, Miss.; about 750 Entergy employees become the core of its regional workforce; the new company invests its time, philanthropy and capital here; growing infrastructure investments create economic activity and job opportunities; and the new model builds on the benefits of the wholesale electricity market with a regional view.

(in addition to others described elsewhere in this communication, in the prospectus included in the registration statement on Form S-4 that was filed by ITC with the SEC in connection with the proposed transactions) involving risks inherent in the contemplated transaction, including: (1) failure of Entergy and its shareholders to recognize the expected benefits of the transaction, (2) failure to obtain regulatory approvals necessary to consummate the transaction or to obtain regulatory approvals on favorable terms, (3) the ability of Entergy, Mid South TransCo LLC (TransCo) and ITC to obtain the required financings, (4) delays in consummating the transaction or the failure to consummate the transaction, (5) exceeding the expected costs of the transaction, and (6) the failure to receive an IRS ruling approving the tax-free status of the transaction; (iii) legislative and regulatory actions; and (iv) conditions of the capital markets during the periods covered by the forward-looking statements. ITC FORWARD-LOOKING INFORMATION

This communication contains certain statements that describe ITC's management's beliefs concerning future business conditions and prospects, growth opportunities and the outlook for ITC's business, including ITC's business and the electric transmission industry based upon information currently available. Such statements are forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Wherever possible, ITC has identified these forward-looking statements by words such as anticipates, believes, intends, estimates, expects, projects and similar phrases. These forward-looking statements are based upon assumptions ITC management believes are reasonable. Because ITC's forward-looking statements are based on estimates and assumptions that are subject to significant business, economic and competitive uncertainties, many of which are beyond ITC's control or are subject to change, actual results could be materially different and any or all of ITC's forward-looking statements may turn out to be wrong. They speak only as of the date made and can be affected by assumptions ITC might make or by known or unknown risks and uncertainties. Many factors mentioned in this communication and in ITC's annual and quarterly reports will be important in determining future results. Consequently, ITC cannot assure you that ITC's expectations or forecasts expressed in such forward-looking statements will be achieved. Actual future results may vary materially. Except as required by law, ITC undertakes no obligation to publicly update any of ITC's forward-looking or other statements, whether as a result of new information, future events, or otherwise.
