Covidien's Vice President for Integration, Bill Burke, on integration planning

As plans move forward for the acquisition of Covidien by Medtronic, one of the keys to the success of the future organization will be a smooth integration of both companies. Bill Burke, most recently the Chief Financial Officer for Covidien Europe, is now Covidien's Vice President, Integration. As head of planning and implementation he will oversee the teams that have been formed to work on various aspects of the integration planning.

Q&A with Bill Burke, Covidien's Vice President of Integration

What are the goals of integration planning?

We want to ensure a smooth transition upon the closing of the acquisition of Covidien by Medtronic. While the closing is not expected until the end of this year or the beginning of next, we are going to do everything we can to make that transition as seamless as possible. It's critical that we do so in a way that enables us to maintain our business momentum. That's our top priority. It is also important that we put ourselves in a position to meet our growth and cost targets. Another key goal is to accelerate our journey toward becoming a fully integrated healthcare product and services company, so that together, Covidien and Medtronic will be able to offer a much broader portfolio of products and services. To accomplish that goal, both companies must be on the same page throughout the integration process, which is why we are working collaboratively with our counterparts at Medtronic.

What is your role with regard to integration planning?

I see my role as being a conduit for delivering value from the combination of our two companies, which means identifying opportunities for growth and for efficiencies from the combination of our businesses.

There are a number of integration planning teams. What are their responsibilities?

We have a core team as part of our integration management office. We also have functional integration planning teams and value driver teams. While they all have different areas of responsibility, collectively their charge is to come up with ideas and plans that support our integration planning goals and then execute those plans. All of this is designed to prepare us not only for day-one of the future organization, but for the days, weeks and months that follow so that we can hit the ground running and sustain our business performance.

What are some of the tasks and work streams that the teams will focus on?

There are several, but here are a few of the most significant. One is master planning – maintaining governance of the integration process and putting various operating mechanisms in place to help us get to our goals. A second is value-capture – making sure that our functional work streams achieve the savings targets that we need to achieve. A third involves the culture of our new joint entity. We need to understand the cultural similarities as well as the differences between Covidien and Medtronic and shape what the new culture will become. And, there's a team responsible for creating and implementing a comprehensive communications plan so that you and your colleagues will stay informed about what is happening with regard to our integration planning efforts. Beyond the functional tasks, we have teams looking at some of the big picture issues and decisions. For example, how might our two companies do things differently to accelerate growth? Should certain product and service portfolios be handled by us or by Medtronic or both? What's the best way to go to market? How do we approach our providers and hospitals as this new business entity? We have very capable people working on developing the answers to those questions.

What are the immediate next steps? What will we see happening?

We are still in the preparation stage. Our U.S. integration team leaders have just completed a boot camp – a comprehensive training session. We're preparing a similar session for team leaders who are outside the U.S. We're in the process of establishing and finalizing cost and synergy savings targets. We're currently developing the communications plan I mentioned earlier. In short, a lot of prep work is happening right now.

What do you want our employees to keep top-of-mind about the integration?

I would ask everyone to remember that that we are only in the planning process at this point in time. We must continue to run our companies independently and deliver on our current commitments to our customers. That shouldn't stop while we plan for integration to take place.

NO OFFER OR SOLICITATION

This communication is not intended to and does not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to subscribe for or buy or an invitation to purchase or subscribe for any securities or the solicitation of any vote or approval in any jurisdiction pursuant to the acquisition, the merger or otherwise, nor shall there be any sale, issuance or transfer of securities in any jurisdiction in contravention of applicable law. No offer of securities shall be made except by means of a prospectus meeting the requirements of Section 10 of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended.

Medtronic Cautionary Statement Regarding Forward-Looking Statements

Statements contained in this communication that refer to New Medtronic's and/or Medtronic's estimated or anticipated future results, including estimated synergies, or other non-historical facts are forward-looking statements that reflect Medtronic's current perspective of existing trends and information as of the date of this communication.

Forward-looking statements generally will be accompanied by words such as anticipate, believe, plan, could, show, estimate, expect, forecast, outlook, guidance, intend, may, might, will, possible, potential, probable, or similar words, phrases or expressions. It is important to note that Medtronic's goals and expectations are not predictions of actual performance. Actual results may differ materially from Medtronic's current expectations depending upon a number of factors affecting New Medtronic's business, Medtronic's business, Covidien's business and risks associated with the proposed transactions. These factors include, among others, the inherent uncertainty associated with financial projections; restructuring in connection with, and successful close of, the Covidien acquisition; subsequent integration of the Covidien acquisition and the ability to recognize the anticipated synergies and benefits of the Covidien acquisition; the risk that the required regulatory approvals for the proposed transactions are not obtained, are delayed or are subject to conditions that are not anticipated; the anticipated size of the markets and continued demand for Medtronic's and Covidien's products; the impact of competitive products and pricing; access to available financing (including financing for the acquisition or refinancing of Medtronic or Covidien debt) on a timely basis and on reasonable terms; the risks of fluctuations in foreign currency exchange rates; the risks and uncertainties normally incident to the medical device industry, including competition in the medical device industry; product liability claims; the difficulty of predicting the timing or outcome of pending or future litigation or government investigations; variability of trade buying patterns; the timing and success of product launches; the difficulty of predicting the timing or outcome of product development efforts and regulatory agency approvals or actions, if any; potential for adverse pricing movement; costs and efforts to defend or enforce intellectual property rights; difficulties or delays in manufacturing; reduction or interruption in supply; product quality problems; the availability and pricing of third-party sourced products and materials; risks associated with self-insurance and commercial insurance; successful compliance with governmental regulations applicable to New Medtronic's, Medtronic's and Covidien's facilities, products and/or businesses; changes in the laws and regulations, affecting among other things, pricing and reimbursement of pharmaceutical products; health care policy changes; risks associated with international operations; changes in tax laws or interpretations that could increase New Medtronic's or Medtronic's consolidated tax liabilities, including, if the transaction is consummated, changes in tax laws that would result in New Medtronic being treated as a domestic corporation for United States federal tax purposes; the loss of key senior management or scientific staff; and such other risks and uncertainties detailed in Medtronic's periodic public filings with the SEC, including but not limited to Medtronic's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended April 25, 2014 and from time to time in Medtronic's other investor communications. Except as expressly required by law, each of New Medtronic and Medtronic disclaims any intent or obligation to update or revise these forward-looking statements.

Covidien Cautionary Statement Regarding Forward-Looking Statements

Statements contained in this communication that refer to Covidien's estimated or anticipated future results, including estimated synergies, or other non-historical facts are forward-looking statements that reflect Covidien's current perspective of existing trends and information as of the date of this communication. Forward-looking statements generally will be accompanied by words such as anticipate, believe, plan, could, should, estimate, expect, outlook, guidance, intend, may, might, will, possible, potential, predict, project, or other similar expressions. It is important to note that Covidien's goals and expectations are not predictions of actual performance. Actual results may differ materially from Covidien's current expectations depending upon a number of factors affecting Covidien's business, Medtronic's business and risks associated with the proposed transactions. These factors include, among others, the inherent uncertainty associated with financial projections; the timing to consummate the proposed transactions; the risk that a condition to closing of the proposed transactions may not be satisfied; the risk that the required regulatory approvals for the proposed transactions are not obtained, are delayed or are subject to conditions that are not anticipated; New Medtronic's ability to achieve the synergies and value creation contemplated by the proposed transactions; the anticipated size of the markets and continued demand for Medtronic's and Covidien's products; New Medtronic's ability to promptly and effectively integrate Medtronic's and Covidien's businesses; the diversion of management time on transaction-related issues; competitive factors and market conditions in the industry in which Covidien operates; Covidien's ability to obtain regulatory approval and customer acceptance of new products, and continued customer acceptance of Covidien's existing products; and the other risks identified in Covidien's periodic filings including its Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended September 27, 2013, and from time to time in Covidien's other investor communications. We caution you that the foregoing list of important factors is not exclusive. In addition, in light of these risks and uncertainties, the matters referred to in Covidien's forward-looking statements may not occur. Covidien undertakes no obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statement as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except as may be required by law.
