AOL Required to Disclose Identity of Internet Chatroom Poster

VANCOUVER, CANADA January 14, 2003 -- Nam Tai Electronics, Inc. ("Nam Tai" or the "Company") (NASDAQ/NM Symbol: NTAI; NYSE Symbol: NTE (as of Jan 23/03); CBOE Symbol: QNA) today announced that the Supreme Court of Virginia denied a petition for rehearing by America Online, Inc. of an earlier ruling requiring AOL to disclose to Nam Tai the identity of one of AOL's subscribers.

In 2001 Nam Tai filed a complaint in state court in California against unknown internet chatroom posters claiming that certain posters committed libel and violated California's unfair business practices statute. Nam Tai was able to obtain the e-mail address of one of the posters and then obtained a subpoena from a Virginia state court to AOL seeking the name behind the e-mail address. AOL filed a motion to have the order quashed, but in August 2001, a trial court in Virginia refused to quash the subpoena. On November 1, 2002 the Supreme Court of Virginia affirmed the trial court's ruling and on January 10, 2003, AOL's petition for a rehearing was denied. AOL's only recourse is to seek review by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"We are pleased with today's decision and hope that we will finally be provided with the true identity of the poster against whom we have filed a claim in California," commented Mr. Tadao Murakami, Nam Tai's Chairman. "In order to protect the Company's reputation, something that is particularly important for a publicly-listed company, Nam Tai needs to determine the source of, and the intention for, the offending internet postings. We must be given the opportunity to dispute all false and misleading statements in the U.S. courts to protect Nam Tai's image."

Mr. Murakami further indicated that "Nam Tai is a great believer in freedom of speech. However, freedom of speech can not be used as a tool to mislead investors and cause harm to a company and anyone without any accountability or avenues of recourse."

VANCOUVER, CANADA January 6, 2003 -- Nam Tai Electronics, Inc. ("Nam Tai" or the "Company") (NASDAQ/NM Symbol: NTAI; CBOE Symbol: QNA; Future NYSE Symbol: NTE) today announced that it will transfer its stock listing to the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE") from the NASDAQ Stock Market. Nam Tai's stock will begin trading on the NYSE under the stock ticker symbol "NTE" on Thursday, January 23, 2003. Concurrent with the NYSE listing, Nam Tai's shares will be withdrawn from the NASDAQ. The Company will continue to trade on the NASDAQ until the transfer date.

"The Exchange is privileged to welcome Nam Tai Electronics to its family of listed companies," said New York Stock Exchange Chairman and CEO Dick Grasso. "As a leading technology enterprise with global reach, Nam Tai's decision to list on the world's leading equities market serves the missions of both organizations. We look forward to an outstanding partnership with Nam Tai and its shareholders."

The New York Stock Exchange is the world's leading and most technologically advanced equities market with a market capitalization exceeding $13.4 trillion. A New York Stock Exchange listing provides qualifying companies with the broadest access to investors, the greatest market depth and liquidity, cost-effective access to capital, the highest visibility and the fairest pricing. Investors choose to invest in NYSE listed companies as the requirements for obtaining and maintaining a listing on the Exchange, including standards relating to protecting interests, are more rigorous than those of any other market.

Nam Tai was founded in 1975 as an electronics trading company. Since then it has continually grown and upgraded its capabilities. When it listed as a small cap on NASDAQ in 1988 Nam Tai was known as a quality manufacturer of calculators and other lower technology consumer electronic products. Today, from its state-of-the-art manufacturing facilities in Shenzhen, China, Nam Tai manufactures high-end, high technology products and components, including LCD modules and RF modules for mobile phones.

During this time Nam Tai has been consistently profitable and has rewarded shareholders with nine consecutive years of increasing dividends ($0.48 per share in 2002).

"As a result of our Company's dedication to continual improvement we have achieved steady growth since our initial public offering in 1988 and are now pleased that we meet the New York Stock Exchange's stringent listing requirements," commented Mr. Tadao Murakami, Nam Tai's Chairman. "We anticipate that the listing on the New York Stock Exchange will increase our visibility in North America, attract new investors, and ultimately lower the Company's cost of capital and support continued growth. We greatly appreciate and acknowledge the support that we have received from the NASDAQ over the years."

Change of Auditors

Nam Tai also announced that in line with its move to New York Stock Exchange, Nam Tai has changed its auditors to Grant Thornton from HLB Hodgson Impey Cheng.
